Harlan A. Price, A.I.A., N.C.A.R.B.

President and Operating Manager

Mr. Price brings over 25 years of experience to the practice of architecture. In addition to having actively practiced in three states, he has served as a college instructor of construction industry specific information technology applications. As President and Operating Manager of AIDG, he maintains responsibility for management of AIDG. He also maintains direct control of the design and management of all projects from initial client contact through construction closeout, including the development of construction documents and specifications, design team training and management, and contract administration.

Mr. Price has served in management roles on several high-profile projects of varying building types. He has received accolades for expert knowledge, attention to detail, and outstanding design solutions that are aesthetically pleasing as well as functional. Mr. Price has proven his commitment to client programs without sacrificing the design quality of a project. The following projects are proven successes of his dedication and expertise.
